Such was the message forwarded to the State Department at Washington by Venustiano Carranza, the self-asserted and powerusurping leader of the "Mexican Revolution." This same statement is responsible for the recall of the American Red Cross, which has been carrying on humanitarian work in the turbulent and faminestricken republic for the past sixty days. A deliberate piece of murder is this, for thousands of poor wretches have been kept alive only through the efforts of that organization, and with that source of food cut off, deaths from starvation will increase to a staggering

On this date, October 5, the day following the order to "get out," I accompanied Mr. Charles O'Connor, special representative for the Red Cross, on a tour of investigation. The question of the death statistics for the Federal District, as forwarded by Mr. O'Connor to the headquarters of the society and which were published in the American newspapers, were questioned by the Carranza faction and one object of the expedition was for the purpose of making an inspection of the cemeteries as a means of obtaining tangible evidence in substantiation of the report in question.

Leaving the Red Cross headquarters, situated in front of the Cafe Colon, our auto speeded along the fashionable Paseo de la Reforma and then through the beautiful Colonia de San Rafael. No evidence of pest or famine was to be seen in those districts, for the poor do not live there and it seemed inconceivable that on the other side of the Rio Consulado, a small stream, which divides San Rafael from the plebeian district, known as Santa Julia, such awful misery and suffering should prevail.

CAMERAS ARE NOT WANTED

Foreigners seen with cameras are now looked upon as mischief makers, and, if caught with any pictures portraying the horrible conditions, are liable to article No. 33 (expulsion from the country as a pernicious foreigner.) There are about ten small cemeteries surrounding the city, and being somewhat isolated gave us the desired opportunity. San Bartolo, the one we visited, lies just southwest of the new American cemetery and is the burying ground for the suburb of Tacuba and adjacent farms. On entering nothing out of the ordinary was encountered unless it was the unkempt condition of the graves in the first-class plot. However, on passing back to the Potter's Field, the expected met our gaze and had we not anticipated gruesomeness, the shock would have been greater.

Seven men were at work digging graves and more were engaged n piling up rotten boards and bits of wood, which came up with ach shovelful of earth. Over an area of some 300 square feet were o be seen mounds of earth (new graves,) broken coffins and parts of human bodies not entirely decomposed. The whole scene suggested disorder and gave evidence of hurried and careless burials. At one corner the writer witnessed the revolting spectacle of starving dogs quarreling over ghastly objects; the remainder of the party were spared that sight. A quantity of small caskets in fair preservation were piled to one side to be sold to poor women, in which to bury their children. All in all the sight was one never to be forgotten and sufficient to convert the most skeptical to a belief in England a Military Aristocracy, while Teutons are Business Men.

Ancient Families of Albion Plunge into War with Verve and Vigor, While Poorer Classes are not in Condition-Too Much Secrecy in London, Berlin More Open-hearted.

> BY HARRY CARR. [BY DIRECT WIRE-EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

The truth is, the conditions are exactly the opposite. Germany has thus far put it over the allies because it is essentially a business nation. Engiand has failed because England is a military aristocracy.

This fact absolutely hits you in the cyc before you have been in England a week. Out at that golf club we passed miles and failes of country estates.

"What do these men do for a living?" I asked my hosts.

"They don't do anything. These estates are handed down from father to the country being them have been half.

I asked them where I should check my camera.

"What do these men do for a living?" I asked my hosts.

"They don't do anything. These estates are handed down from father to son. Many of them have been held since the time of the Conqueror."

Then I understood. These men are the hereditary knights. They are the military cast. Their function in the state is to fight in protection of the tenants, their vasuals. It has been of the aristocracy rushed into the army and fought like lions. Of course they did. They were taking up their heritage. Even in appearance this military caste is a distinctive class. The young British aristocrat has been bred for battle. He is a long limbed lean-faced young thoroughbred. The English lower classes are stubby and underfed and stooped.

The misfortune of this military caste is that in this war their opponents were a patient, plodding, working people who decided to fight the war by machinery.

RUN BY THE UNIONS.

The British have a keen intelligent business class of their own; but they don't uss it. Great Britain is run by the labor unions and the hereditary aristocrats. The upper middle classes count for very little. And the British government forever complains that this is the only class that does not go fo war.

As a result of these two opposite conditions, the British and German government maintain diametrically opposite views and policies as regards public opinion, the newspapers and the world at large.

understandable that I was not allowed to see the inside of things. To tell the truth I didn't try to. Before going to the front in Germany I had virtually pledged myself not to go to any other front for a period of three months. But I found that the embargo was upon newspaper correspondents who had been in England for twenty years. In fact, no one is allowed to visit prison camps or hospitals, let alone go to the front.

MAY ALL GO TO FRONT.

In Germany any accredited newspaper man is sure of going to the front. In England the government would allow no one to go. They tried to have the newspapers supplied by an army officer who wrote a lot of bitthering rot under the name of Eyewitness. When all the London papers refused to print any more of it, the government finally unbent to the extent of allowing one correspondent to represent all the London papers at each front. In isolated cases, they have allowed other correspondents to go. The young man who went to the Dardenelles for the biggest of the London dallies, said they would not even let him land, but kept him on one of the battleships where he knew less about it than when he was at home in London.

Applications have repeatedly been made by the big news bureaus in London camps and other things which have become an old story in Berlin. In every case, the application has been

I think, however, that the worm has turned. The Bulgarian incident has aroused the slow British public to the outrageous way they have been fooled and faked on war news. Just before I came away, the British government had allowed one of the American correspondents to go the greatest concession that had been made during the war. They are finding out that they can't stay up on

The British business men have progressed too far to very long tolerate

The reservists from various towns along the western part of the Transsiberian Railway are taken chiefly to Harbin or Vladivostok for mobilization. At nearly every staftlon reservists and their families are waiting for orders. The government has provided chapels in many of the railway stations located far from a Russian church. At one station, east of Harbin, the correspondent of the Tssociated Press saw an open-air mass held for $00 men who were about to enter a troop train. The men were closely grouped about the priest, with the long beard and hair common to the clergy of the Russian church. He wore a yellow satin robe, richly embroidered in gold and held aloft a golden cross which reflected the rays of the sun, which was just setting at the edge of the vast prairie behind him. The reservists chanted the responses with unwavering voices and listened with rapt attention to the priest. Their religious fervor was shown especially by the eagerness with which they pressed forward to have their brows moistened with holy water after the priest had pronounced the benediction. Many of the reservists led their sons forward with them so they might stand to rether before the priest and receive his blessing.

DANDRUFF MAKES CON CONTROL OF THE CO HAIR FALL OUT

N THE EAST. 25-cent bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

> Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not iteh, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the s.alp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25c bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment — that's all — you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

I believe this is the greatest sugar beet country in the West. There is positively no comparison between this tion and the Middle West country. I consider land here twice as valuable from a preductive standpoint as any land in the Middle West. I have farmed in the well-known Bear River Valley, famed for its fruit, but I greatly prefer this Delta country in point of making money. I want to recommend this land to all looking for cheap land, abundant irrigation water, deep, rich soil, high elevation, dry climate and pure drinking water.

THE SOM ELY Washingly DETINES From the Men's Clothing, Furnishings and Hat Business Our permanent discontinuance of all our lines of men's wearing apparel is heralded by a value-giving event pre-eminent in the history of this store, which has stood for the highest in QUALITY and VALUE in Southern California for the past two generations. An important change of business policy, such as this, also necessitates a complete re-arrangement and re-organization of our entire store, and to prepare for this we must also greatly reduce our tremendous stock of fine women's wearing apparel. Both men and women of the most discriminating tastes, who can appreciate value and quality at a low price, will realize what bargains these are at such low prices. You will find this one of those rare opportunities that come but once in a life-time to buy the most dependable of merchandise at positively the lowest prices we have ever announced. Plan to attend this sale Monday and take advantage of these offerings.

According to Mr. Garrett, he was returning from an automobile trip with his wife. Just before he reached Ord street and North Broadway the four Austrians stepped from a saloon and started out into the street. He atempted to stop his automobile by putting on the brakes. Instead of making any effort to get out of the way of the machine, Mr. Garrett declared, the four stood still in the center of the street. Three were knocked down and pinned beneath the automobile.

Police, assisted by a number of pedestrians, who rushed to the rescue of the unconscious men, lifted the machine to one side.

Detective Cummings, who investigated, interviewed a number of pedestrians who saw the machine strike the four men and they all declared the Austrians made no effort to avoid the automobile. The automobile was being driven about fifteen miles an hour when the accident occurred.

probably in the fall of 1916.

There was a warm discussion about the next meeting. S. M. Grant, Mrs. J. W. Davis and others were in favor of one meeting a year instead of the two that have been held in the past. P. D. Barnhart, of Pasadens, and W. B. Hadley were champions of the two meetings a year. President J. M. Paige, of Fomona, made peace when he passed the question on to the new president to be decided later.

"There are two big things that we should work for," said J. H. Reed, the father of municipal control of tree-planting in the State. "We should have a committee that can go to the small towns and villages, hold meetings and wake up an interest in tree-planting there. We should also take more interest in the planting of country highways. Orange and Los Angeles counties have done all that has been done in this line."

"City planting is more than pretty picture drawing," said Dean Damon, of Throop College. "Pretty pictures will not be loved or admired for long. There must be a soul behind the picture and there must be a soul in the building of parks and a city beautiful."

BEER FOR CENTRAL AMERICA TO GO FOR FIRST TIME BY DIRECT ROUTE,

For the first time, beer for Central America will be shipped through Los Angeles harbor today. A combination of war conditions and new shipping that in time, if the brewers' plans ma-ture, will be of large importance.

The shipment today by the steamer Mayfair will be made by the Los An-geles Brewing Company and is part of a traffic established within the past a traffic established within the past two months. In that time all shipments have been made, perforce, by way of San Francisco, But all the company's shipments in future will be direct from this port.

Brewing concerns of San Francisco, Milwaukee and other cities are competing for the Central American trade, which has assumed large importance for the beer makers of this country since the war has cut off the Gegman goods. Milwaukee and Chicago have held an advantage in rates, for shipments via the Mississippi and New Orleans, but this advantage is largely offset by a recent reduction in the local shipping charges.

struction work there by contract. It has all been done by force account. The construction of the warehouse, however, involves the outlay of considerable machinery and equipment and if this was to be done by force account the city would have to invest in about $40,000 worth to handle the work. The alternative was letting a contract to the lowest responsible bidder. The contract price is $117.000, but the city would have to spendabut $25,000 more than that to do the work itself.

The walking delegates, working through certain friends in the City Council, started a movement to have included in the specifications a clause oroviding that the union scale of wages be adopted. This would mean recognition of the unions and their hosses on harbor work. The Mavor was asked to send, and did send, releter to the Council ursting that the contract be repudiated and the harbor warehouse ordered built by force account and that "Los Angeles labor" only be employed.

The effect of this letter was do precipitate matters in the Council. The humoring bosses of the union-labor market saw a chance to unionise the harbor work, the nay roll for which amounts to $20,000 a month.

THE FINAL PLAY.

THE FINAL PLAY.

Using the Sleeper incident and the petty troubles on the job with labor disturbers, together with the controversy over the warehouse contract, as elements for the final play, the walking delegates forced a climax that was scandalously dramatic.

A step in the plan to "break" the Harbor Commission was the publication of a series of articles in a little labor-union paper, condemnatory of certain alleged mechanical blunders in harbor construction.

Lord Northcliffe is one of the few men England able to grasp the seriousness the situation brought about by the ar, and through his newspapers is in a position to get his views widely circulated. a account of his insight into England's esent dangers and the justification of his licisms by what is actually occurring a predictions of upheavals to follow the nelusion of the struggle deserve more attaction than is generally accorded to the terances of wid-nenned war prophets. Roosevelt and William Jennings Bryan.

The government in Westminster has taken over all the British raliroads, has acquired the power to use any private mili or factory it may need for military purposes, has commandeered the cables and pretty nearly muziled the press. The Globs, the oldest and most conservative of the London newspapers, has had its presses stopped and its publication held up for too treely criticising members of the present sovernment. The Cunard Steamship Company, under government supervision, has refused to carry any more able-bodied emigrants from the British Isles to America during the war.

In all the many past wars in which Eng-

In all the many past wars in which England has been engaged never before has state Socialism been so drastically applied—even as a temporary measure. England hitherto has not sacrificed its ideals of personal liberty as it has under the Teuton menace. And Lord Northcliffe believes that England will never entirely recover from the effects of the war, but that to a greater or a leaser extent state Socialism in the or a lesser extent state Socialism in the British Isles has come to stay.

This will more widely affect the future of the British people than the decision arrived at from armed conflict when the end at last comes. If England should win the war at the price of the personal lberty of her citizens and forging the shackles of state control of private business it will be after all a German victory.

For if England has suffered in the past from too much individualism, it has also been the foundation of her commercial suc-cesses. She will suffer without recompense in the future from too much state inter-

This last is not the calamity of the after-war upheaval that will burt the nation. In itself this is a hopeful feature. But it means that the initiative will be taken from the enteroris-ing citizens, capital will seek more profitable investment abroad, the national tone will be graded downward and the ancient ca that has given the British race their

After dealing with the future of his own has some guesses to make on the future of America. Put here his prophecies fall down from not being grounded on fact. Lord Northeliffe knows his own country, but he sn't know ours. When the war ends in rope America is to have a revolution on hands, he says. Why? Because the ericans have been dwelling too much on the subject of war, have been sating themselves with its horrors, and the psy-chical effects will be dangerous to the social peace of this republic.

The case of Mrs. Canfield is one of the strangest in the local police records. For months a number of boarders have been living in the crater of a veritable volcano while to all appearances they were in a desirable residential district.

The lady running the hotel seemed amiable, accommodating and sane-she was sentimental, indeed, and given to poetical effuin evidence. No thoroughly-equipped modern physician would have failed to see something amiss in the behavior of this sentimental, versifying landlady. A little concentrated observation and deduction will always detect the most carefully-concealed drug habit. We cannot all be expert physicians, but we can all learn to study human nature.

We have plenty of good schools for teaching business methods. Yet, after all, there is no aid to business success like the study of mankind. Without this knowledge business technique will not make commercial success any more than mere stage tech-nique will produce a Hamlet or a King Lear.

THE PETTIFOGGING OF ENGLAND.

The courts in both the United States and Great Britain have held that property shipped from a neutral to the enemy country under a contract by which it is to become the property of an enemy subject, of the American ships and cargoes which though it be agreed that it shall be at the have been seized by British cruisers. risk of the shipper during the voyage, is regarded as enemy property (4 C. The British prize court in sustaining this contention referred to the fact that during our Civil War the Supreme Court of the United States held that a belligerent can on its way from one neutral port to anafter being unloaded at the neutral port to which it is being carried, is intended to be transported by sea to an enemy port (5 Wall. U. S. 1.)

This decision, although acquiesced in by Great Britain, has been very generally condemned by European writers on international law. The effect of the general application of such a doctrine would give to a belligerent power a right to stop a neutral vessel in any part of the world in order to determine whether it contains goods which are to be subsequently forwarded from the Riuntechii said that it inflicted a more se rious blow to neutral rights than all the British orders in council put together.

In the cases of the selzure of $15,000,000 worth of the Armour meat there was no "evidence" that the cargoes, after being unloaded in a Scandinavian port, were intended to be transported by sea to Germany, and the English prize court decided that the meat was intended for German use because the quantity shipped was far in excess of the amount ordinarily imported into Scandinavian ports.

It is also a part of international law that property shipped by an enemy to a neutral or friendly consignee will be treated as enemy property unless it is clearly shown that the property has actually passed to the neutral consignee and that the sale is subject to no conditions (6 C. Rob. 24; 9 Cranch, U. S. 183.)

under the law of nations it is the privilege of the United States to resort in such cases as that presented by the seizure of the Armour meat cargoes. One of these is "retorsion." In Dana's Wheaton's Int. Law, note 151, and Rivier's Droit des Gens. 189, "retorsion" is a term applied to the action of a state in treating the subjects of another state in substantially the same way in which the latter state has treated the subjects of the state using the retorsion. It is the application of the lex talionis to na-tions. The United States, under the law of retorsion, might seize upon the high seas British ships containing cargoes belonging to British owners of equal value with that

In the case of the Armour meat shipments the claim of England was that the meat, although shipped to agents of the Armours at Scanding in a second placed upon the ground that the goods seized were contraband of war, actually or conditionally, but upon the ground merely that they were of German origin or German Armours at Scanding is a second placed upon the ground that the goods seized were contraband of war, actually or conditionally, but upon the ground merely that they were of German origin or German destination.

a contract by which it was to be reshipped might resort to "embargo," which is a form of reprisal, consisting in the seizure of vessels and cargoes of another nation found in port, they being subsequently released if peace is confirmed, while if war breaks out they become liable to confiscati (Dana's Wheaton's Int. Law, note 152.)

"Necessity is the mother of invention" in this instance, for the aim of the organization is to raise funds for the care and maintenance of a young man too ill to work, and who, through the personal interest of Miss Howard was taken from the County Hospital and blaced in a comfortable cottage at Monrovia, where he is now being cared for with the hope of an effective cure.

Assisted by some fifty well-known society and club women. Miss Howard is arranging for a charity ball to be given at either the Alexandria or Little Theater in the near future.

In the meantime, immediate expenses are being met with the help of a few interested friends.

In the history of the Hollywood Woman's Club there has been no more worthy programme than that presented by Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith last Wednesday afternoon. This sifted literary interpreter was at her best and gave her audience, which was unusually large and enthusiastic, readings both interesting and educational. She was given an ovation at the conclusion. Mesdames M. B. Richardson, A. E. Huntington, Frank L. Wilson, Roscoe Neal, J. H. Knudsen and T. McComber were hostesses for the day.

Salts flushes Kidneys without injury; also neutralizes uric acid, ending Bladder irritation.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Socrates was opposed to permitting the people as a whole to pass final judgment on the decrees of the Senate, holding that such procedure would produce a condition where "sages deliberate and ignorance decides." Tears after the death of Socrates Aercines wrote that. "Socrates Aercines wrote that. "Socrates Aercines wrote that." Socrates Aercines wrote that. Whenever the populace felt that the presence or the teaching of a man was injurious to the republic, or to the special privileges sought by some strong body of the electorate, a special election was held to decide whether he should be banished.

This was the first introduction of our modern form of the "reaching of a man was linked through the use of ostracism." The pages of history do not record a single instance in which a tyrant was banished through the use of this device.

THE CHIN LINE. RECEDING chin will spotl an therwise perfect profile, while well rounded chin, that comes to its proper place in the side line of the face, will make one forget even a pug nose. Nothing will suggest grace or beauty better than a long, im, curving line, from the chin down slim, curving line, from the chin down into the throat. A double chin—or a triple one—is an abomination.

The length of this line under the chin—the chin line as it is mostly called—can be increased by a series of exercises stretching out the chin as far as it can go, raising the face with the mouth open, throwing the head back as far as possible and then closing the mouth. This stretches the mwwies from the chin all the way down the neck, and will reduce some of the superfitious fiesh that may have collected there. of the superfluous flesh that may nave collected there.

If, when you masses your face—provided you use cold cream—you will streke the chin line from the chin all the way down the throat, you will do much to improve this part of the face. If you will practice the exercise mentioned above a few times each day, varying it by stretching the neck from side to side and rolling it around on the shoulders you will not only beautify the neck and chin line externally, but help any weakness in the throat. Frequently sort throats treated like this can be cured before they have made much headway.

Wearing high tight collars will ston

"The Sins of the Mothers," featuring the dual stars, Anita Stewart and Earle Williams, supported by an exceptional cast, graphically shows how a woman's love for gambling is inherited by her daughter. The daughter. The daughter the rise ducated in a convent, but as soon as she makes her debut into sother which is raided. The way the young desired which is raided. The way the young woman is finally won back to home life makes a powerful climax.

LOVE OF DOTA THOG.

BY DAVID CASTLE.

Twas on a summer's evening in the Neolithic Age;
Oba Chok stood in the doorway of her hut of mud and stones.
Dota Thog was in the jungle cursing loudly in his rage.
For his rival Hud was strumming on a thing of hide and bones.

"Tou're the flower of the forest; you're a bloomin' blushing peach," Warbled Hud in blissful rapture as he twanged a minor chord.
"What a devil of a racket; what an awful, awful screech," Papa Chok thus voiced opinion as he rolled his eyes to "Gord."

Now Oba Chok, demure and coy, stood forth in simple guise;
Her choicest string of beads she wore—and nothing else at all.
And Oba Chok, to pass the time, made simply scandalous eyes,
Which caused poor Hud, to waft a kiss—and thus began his fall.

kiss—and thus began his fall.

For near at hand the grass grew high, and Dota Thog was there;
And in his hand an ostrich egg was held with grim intent.
And when he saw that wafted kiss 'twas more than he, could bear;
He soaked the egg with all his might at Oba's other gent.

Hud's kiss was seen by Oba Chok, and sweet was her reply.

But Dots Thog had never missed; his sight was very keen;
As Hud, inspired, raised up his face to have another try.
The egg—of doubtful vintage—busted squarely on his bean.

First he rolled his eves in horror; then

First he rolled his eyes in horror; then he quickly krabbed his nose;
Then flinging up his arms he spun—and tumbled in a heap.
He mutely gazed at Oba Chok and wiggled all his toes;
Then feebly gazed, "Oh, mommer!" as he gently went to sleep.

Then Dota Thog drew near and saw the state that Hud was in,
And Obo Chok, with languid gait, was just a step behind.
"He was raised to be an omelet," offered Dota with a grin;
And Oba murmured, "Ish-ka-bib," or something of the kind.

With eager hands did Dota seize the harp of hide and bone.
And Obo Chok, with meaning smile, drew near and eyed it long.
Now Dota was no piker, and his heart was not of stone.
So he plunked the strings with easy grace, and roared a gorgeous song.

Now Papa Chok, in calm repose, lay on his bed of hay And dreamed he sat at poker, with three aces in his mitt. But the pot was never opened, for a terrifying bray Made Papa Chok sit up in bed and nearly throw a fit.

Against the wall, in easy reach, there hing a dainty thing;
Of hickory was its handle, and its head was hardest flint.
So Papa grabbed his "weatter" with a neat back-handed swing.
And sauntered through the doorway saying words we dare not print.

With eyes which strove to pierce the gloom he softly muttered "Hud!" And crept upon the singer as the precious moments fiew.

New the writer surely hates to nip a romance in the bud;

But as Pop had brought his "swatter," what the devil can we do?

For the hickory shaft descended with its twenty pounds of stone:
A noble wallop, on the conk, was Papa's calling card.
And Dota Thog, with wobbly knees, subsided with a groan, While Oba Chok let out a squawk and took it rather hard.

But what is this? Pop's face grows pale! He views the senseless brow. Then, falling on his daughter's cheat, he weakly says "Oh, gee! I thought 'twas Hud. I've went and did it now; For Dota holds an I.O.U. which bears my name, you see."

But Oba said, "Don't worry, Pa. This guy and I shall wed.
You can keep your fifty clam shells; he will never want them then."
But Papa Chok grew paler as he sadly wept and said, "One wife he has, and many kids. You'll have to guess again!"

(Blue lights—soft music). Slow curtain.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Lieut. Joseph S. Hulings, U.S.N., has invented a new type of "baby submarine," which can be hoisted and carried on the deck of a battleiship. Because there has heretofore been no means of exhausting engine gases while running submerged, it has been necessary to equip submarines with electric motor propulsion, thus requiring a material increase in the size of the boat. In Lieut. Huling's proposed craft a distillate engine will be installed, exhausting under a patented system of his own.

United States Senator William E. Borah declared suffrage a distinct step towards better government, in an address made at a suffrage rally in Boston last week. He did not recommend suffrage as a panacea for all political evils, but said that, after twenty years' experience, the people of Idaho were agreed that it had done good for the State.

During the recent submarine mannevers in Long Island Sound, Vincent Astor chased the submarines in a hydroaeroplane and succeeded theoretically in putting one under-sea craft would await a submarine's appearance from the deep, a few hundred yards distant, speed toward it at a top-notch gait and endeavor to overtake the submarine before it could flood its tanks and disappear beneath the surface.

Ten acres of gold fish bring Eugene Catte of Langdon, Kan., more ready cash annually than is cleaned up on the average 160-acre farm. But raising and marketing ten acres of gold fish is no lazy man's job. In fact, Mr. Catte puts in as many days' work in a year as does the average farmer. His industry has grown to such proportions that he has turned his grain farm over to his son, and now devotes his time exclusively to the production of gold fish.

Sale of Suits Which Have Been Specially Priced $19.50

They are the surplus stock of a manufacturer in New York City who stands particularly high in our estimation, because of the good distinctive style which he puts into the merch —Perhaps we would not have been so fortunate in getting these over-lots had our buyer not been in New York City, where he could pick them up first hand. Over-lots are especially desirable at this season because, through the lower cost we are able to give our customers suits at better prices than at any other time.

—Most of these suits are broadcloth—for after all is said and done—broadcloth is the favorite material of Fashion this season. But there is good choosing from checked velours, fine cheviots, serges and gabardines. There are at least forty or fifty styles at this price (special purchases usually have a great number of styles), with trimmings of many different kinds. Fur and braid and fancy buttons and velvets, etc.

—The colors are the richer browns, greens, blues, and so many different shades of purple, many of which border onto the red, that it is impossible to mention them all. -Every detail of these suits, both outside and inside-linings, seams, etc., is very much out of the ordinary.

Some of the Fine $27.50 & $32.50 Corduroy, Mixture and Zibeline Coats Have Had Their Prices Reduced to $16.50 and $19.50 -There are quite a few of them in the lot, and reduced only because the spirited selling for the last month or so has taken away many sizes, leaving 'sts broken. In other words, they are to be cleared away at $16.50 and $19.50.

-Women will find that they can be fitted, no matter what

Street and Afternoon Dresses Low Priced to $14.75 and $19.50

—Nothing smarter or more advantageously priced has come from packing cases this fall. Serges, silk, charmeuse, crepe de chine and novelty plaids. Not a few of them are fur trimmed and there are princess effects, coat styles and the Russian blouses in shades of pearl gray, Alice blue, green, black and old rose.

—Let any woman say if she can find better dresses at these prices. If she can we should like to know.

One May Have Choice of All $5.75

Georgette Crepe Waists at $5.00

—And of course the entire lot includes tailored styles with convertible collars and long sleeves and those that are more dressy because of their combinations with pussy willow taffeta and their trimmings of beads and for

—We have not counted them, but we believe there must be some hundred and fifty styles at this price.

—Also, there are the new Louisette cloth waists that look like Georgette, have the same sheerness, etc., but launder better and

-The supply of Imported Velvet is just about exhausted and with the European countries still at war it is impossible to tell when we will succeed in importing more-Of course, there are some Velvet Mills in the United States-but where a commodity, such as velvet, has been manufactured for years and years—where the weavers are not only experts themselves but have descended from generations of experts—then it is to be expected that the product of their hands will be far superior to that produced by comparatively new weavers.

-It is an acknowledged fact that the Imported Velvet is far superior at the present time.

They are such good suits—such perfect authoritative styles (note the illustration) of broadcloth, whipcord, Scotch fabrics, mixtures, roughish weaves—in the very new modes—and in the very desirable shades—

We could wax enthusiastic over them—and use adjectives and superlatives galore—but all the words in the world would not make one of them a bit more valuable—and they are all so valuable—We just want women to come and see them Monday—but come prepared to buy—At $19.50.

"Whatever beast is that?" was what I asked when the hat first dawned upon my vision. The hat was innocent enough, of the latest fad, in fact—white beaver—but the creature fast to the mast, or, in other words, perched at the forefront of the band, was a thing to make one wonder. Pelican nor stork, flamingo nor long-necked crane, but something between them all, he had an eye of citron yellow, and a beak of brilliant blue, an apron in several shades of blue-green and gold, worn backward around his neck, and a beak—but you should see him! I can think of no reason for his perching there unless it might be to set the color standard for the bands around the hat which repeat these of his plummage and et ceteras. And yet, it is staunchly said this is the latest millinery fad."

Brother Willimford, who estimates that he has baked approximately 20,000,000 breakfast buns, has just completed his fifteenth year as the head of the bakery of the University of Notre Dame at Notre Dame, Ind. He has kept careful count of the various eatables he has prepared since he began. The brother's family is about 1500 while school is in session. By Brother Willimford's calculations he has mixed 32,850 barrels of flour and made 642,500 five-pound loaves of bread, 16,425,000 cookies, and almost 20,000,000 buns for breakfast.

The dozen water colors from the brush of the late Norman St. Clair will attract interest and attention, for they are among the few that still remain for public inspection. Mr. St. Clair was an artist who knew how to transcribe his impressions with a sure hand. Twelve Venetian water colors by Herbert W. Faulkner of New England are also shown. This artist lived fifteen years in Venice, and grew to know the white lily city and its blue lagoons as few artists know it. Many of his impressions are exquisite.

such a thing can convey an intelligent meaning—is of the highest order. MEMOIRS AND BIOGRAPHY.

THE MAKES OF TREATIES.

A S IS customary with men highly respected by posterity. John Hay was the object of much abuse and sustained attacks during practically the whole of his political career. He was too busy attending ably to public business to be popular.

of his political career. He was too busy attending ably to public business to be popular.

His was a notable career, and in "The Life of John Hay" Mr. Thayer very thoroughly covers the subject. Of especial and timely interest is the chapter on "The German Menace" in which something of a secret diplomatic conflict with Germany is for the first time publicly disclosed, and shows that Hay long ago was aware of German "ambitions" in the western hemisphere, and that for a time England and Germany were in alliance to humiliate the United States in South America.

Hay, as a youth, wished to be a poet; but became a lawyer instead. He had an office in the same block with Lincoin and accompanied the President to Washington as a secretary. From that day (excepting a brief period devoted to newspaper work) Hay was a public man, especially distinguished as a diplomat and treaty-maker.

With the election of McKinley he became Ambassador to England and later was made Secretary of State—an office in which he was persuaded to continue after—the assassination of McKinley.

It is made apparent in this blography that at the time of the Spanish-American war Germany attempted to effect a coalition of European powers to thwart the United States, but England let it be known that if it came to a crisis her fleet would be at the disposal of this country, and that Hay's efforts on behalf of his country during this precarious entanglement were significant.

Hay was in office during the Boxer rebellion and not only did much toward hasten-tion that he knew them well!

His diary contains the following, almost incredible, confessional statement from Roosevelt: "I in my soul know I am but the average man, and that only marvelous good fortune has brought me where I am."

Hay regarded Bryan as many did then and have since; and once in referring to his "arguments" remarked: "Bryan says that the Boer war is an issue of our campaign. I suppose because the English are sixteen to one." But, at that, his sympathies were with the English.

Following a style that is agreeably general among contemporary biographers, Mr. Thayer has quoted largely from Hay's letters and diary, thereby allowing as much autobiographical material as possible to be incorporated.

From a country girl, a native daughter of California pioneers, she made her way upward until men of genius and women of royal blood throughout France and England welcomed her friendship. Then, as seems the fate of charming women, she married and withdrew into the shadow of her hunband and is living "happy ever after."

The book is rich with anecdotes touching many people who are now prominent, but more who were prominent in the later Victorian and Edwardian periods.

She played "Rosalini" in the woods near Shakespeare's home in the first forest production attempted with nature only as a stage and scenery; and also won enthusias-tic praise on the French stage—something unusual for an American actress.

unusual for an American actresa.

The anecdotes of the famous Rachel, of Panny Kemble, Henry James and others are unusual and largely amusing. Especially unsuspected is the boylahness disclosed by Robert Browning during her friendship with him.

Charles Parnell, Israel Zangwill, James Russell Lowell and Mrs. Lowell, Mr. Balfour, King Edward, his sister, the Princesa Louise, and Queen Alexandra. Whistler, Sargent and scores of others are among those whom she met informally before her marriage.

The Princess Lazarovich-Hrebellanovich is a sister of Mrs. W. H. Anderson of this city, and her sister Virginia appeared as "Ramona" in the dramatization of Helen Hunt Jackson's novel.

Hunt Jackson's novel.

The wooing of the Princess seems to have been romantically impetuous, and the wedding was so abrupt that she writes "I had no time for the preparation of a wedding gown." Thereby comes a romantic touch eminently appropriate for the occasion, as she explains: "But I chanced to possess a gown of a unique character and history and I wore that in this impromptu ceremony. Though simple, it was exquisite and rare, hand-spun of the finest silken film that the earth can weave, moon-white, embroidered at the edge with delicate traceries of gold and threads of black in a design of antique geometric scrolls, and with the sacred words of the Orient invocation of a blessing upon its wearer. It had been woven as a part of a nation's love-gift for a great Empress—Queen Victoria—by the figures. woven as a part of a nation's love-gift for a great Empress—Queen Victoria—by the fingers of young Hindu girls in far India. The tates wove it, too, for me, as it would appear, for it came as a gift to me and was never worn by any other person. This tissue of 'woven moonbeams,' as the same fabric is referred to by Kalidasa, the ancient Sanscrit poet and dramatist, has always, since far antiquity, been woven with consecrated ceremony by Indian maidens for the nuptial garments of royal Hindu brides."

Col. W. D. Boyce, owner of the Indiana Times. Saturda Riede Chrono The Farming Business, and author of "Illustrated South America," is an investrate traveler. He has circled the globe and the book, "The United States Colonies and Dependencies," is the result of his latest journey. While on the trip Col. Boyce took $60 views with his camera, of which $60 are reproduced in the volume just issued by Rand, McNaily & Company.

author, "inquires first into the function and psychology of all great art, and endeavors to define those elements which make for genuine worth in painting. Next it attempts to explain both the basic and superficial differences between 'ancient' and 'modern' art and to point out, as minutely as space will permit, the superiority of the new methods over the old. By this exposition an effort is made to indicate the raison d'etre of the modern procedure."

This book comes to California at a seasonable time, now that most of un have given some attention at least to the strange and most unfamiliar work of the abovementioned schools as they are represented at the Fine Arts Palace at the San Francisco exposition. The studies of pure color, without any narrative, nor any form that presents a story to the eye, have caused no end of ridicule and abuse. These pictures come under the head of things so easy to criticise that they are not worth the dignity of the most casual observer, and how much more worth while to find something in them that bespeaks a new art and lets in a breath of fresh air to clear away the film which forms between our lids when we look at a picture which we have been told is very wonderful. Why should not one seek beauty in strange places? Because we find Sargent's picture of Henry James wonderful, is it any reason that we cannot find delight and intellectual enjoyment in more subtle and obscure things? With the assistance of Willard Huntington Wright's book on painting, however, the sense of the new art is not difficult to find, nor the beauty, for the whole idea is presented in such a way that sense comes out of what we have considered nonsense heretofore.

The book has four subjects in color and twenty-four reproductions which have bean well chosen, and fortunately, makes a very desirable-looking book for the ifbrary. I say fortunately, because Mr. Wright has arrived, and must be dealt with. He cannot be side-stepped by the literate, with impunity. He is the most colorful, driving and prescient for

TRADE INVOLVES BIG CASH SUM.

MERCED COUNTY RANCH EX-

An important transaction involving the exchange of two valuable country holdings and the payment of a large consideration in cash is reported by Joseph M. Murphy of the Joseph M. Murphy Realty Company, who represented both sides in the deal. One of the properties was the well-known Lone Tree dairy ranch, eight miles southwest of Merced, in Merced country. The place comprises 440 acres and is highly improved and well stocked. The holding was valued in the transfer at a given price of $125.000. The holding was valued in the transfer at a given price of $125.000. Frank Pellessier of this city was the owner.

For the ranch Mr. Pellessier received from John A. Whetstone of Escondido a reported cash consideration of $40.000 and fifty-six-acre orange grove at Escondido. Half the tract is in full-bearing oranges, the rest in younger trees. The improvements consist of a fine country home and other buildings. The property is one of the show places of its district.

Mr. Murphy also reports having traded a large fesidence on Columbia street, in Passidena, owned by himself, to Thadeus Lowe for a fine restidence at Long Branch, N. J. The

Hupmobile

Los Angeles knows all motor care.

Therefore it knows all motor car values.

And of all cars, the Hupmobile is accorded a degree of approval that seems extraordinary until you learn the reasons for it.

The car that wins such admittedly high favor must be the best in its class and the Hupmobile is that.

It must be comfortable to the point of luxury-and the Hupmobile is

It must afford the maximum in roominess, convenience and easy riding-

It must be "light on its feet," fast in the getaway, flexible and easily handled, powerful for speed and for the hills and heavy roads,

And the Hupmobile is all those in superlative degree

Last, it must be economical to run and to keep-and Hupmobile reputa-

Too bad the host didn't own a Kissel. If he did, it would be merely a matter of twenty minutes' work for him and an assistant to fasten his Detachable Sedan Top on his touring body, and the party could have been on their way within half an hour, their evening clothes safe from dust and blow.

That's one big feature of the KisselKar and its Detachable Top. It makes it an All-Year car—if you choose, an open car in the daytime, a closed car in the evening; an open car when it's warm, a closed car when it's chilly.

You get the maximum use of a car in the Detroit Electric because your wife and daughter never have to depend upon the hired chauffeur nor wait until you can release yourself from business to drive them about. It is just so responsive, so full of life and snap that you can't help but admire it from the first acquaintance. You'll know what the real joys of motoring are when you drive the Haynes "Light Six."

It's a pleasure you can afford, too. Just think, all during the past season, the Haynes "Light Six" has averaged from 18 to 22 miles to a gallon of gasoline, 7500 miles to the original set of tires, and from 300 to 400 miles to a quart of oil, and don't forget that there are some mighty bad roads figured in these averages, too! Not only can you save on these items, but you can take care of your Haynes yourself. It is so simple.

There was a big entry, including E. S. Armstrong, now quite recovered and playing with his old confidence. He finished I down to par in the match play event, and had an $2 for the qualifying round.

J. V. Ellot won the match play against par event with an even score, a 79 medal.

One round of matches will be played off a week in the fall tournament as at the Los Angeles Country Club.

And Shirley is a considerable personage just now. He has been winning laurels fast and furious of late and had his handicap reduced to 10. Yesterday he added the Julius A. Young was playing a first-class game when Shirley beat him in the tournament, and Shirley's score of 79 also won him the weekly sweepstake in Class A.

Dr. J. S. Hunt of Santa Monica won the Class B trophy with $4:12-72. Dr. Hunt, by the way, is extremely popular with a couple of Midwick caddles who spent a goodly time eulogizing his prowess at Del Monte. They were assuring the other caddles that he was a highly desirable goifer to caddle for. Jo and Hutt Martin, the Los Angeles professionals, have decided to take up the challenge of Bob Simpson of Orange county and Frank Peebles of Midwick, who issued a challenge to any two Southern California professionals to beat them on any links of their selection. Dates will be set this week.

ANNUAL FOOTBALL BATTLE IS A TIE.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—Pen sylvania and Michigan fought their annual battle on Franklin Field to-day and neither side was able to score. BANTAMWEIGHT BOUTS TO BE FEATURE EVENTS

SAN BERNARDINO, Nov. 13. —
Three costly fumbles by San Bernardino players contributed largely to the defeat of the local High School today by Chaffey Union of Ontario, the score being 12 to 7. Chaffey scored in the second period, when Kincaid went over on a forward pass and in the third quarter bucked over the line after intercepting a forward throw. San Bernardino fought hard in the fourth to even up and after a spectacular fight to the 1-yard line bucked over for the touchdown. Campbell converted. The victory put the Chaffey well up with Riverside and Pomona in the league standing.

The farmer of today is not paying for the factory's experimental work. He is buying a tractor he knows is backed by a guarantee of years of actual tractor manufacturing.

He, yet, to his sorrow remembers his first automobile purchased in the early stages of automobile making, and he is not buying his tractor from word of mouth, gloring circulars, folders and advertising, he is buying from the recommendation of 10,000 successful astisfied Bull tractor owners—many of whom are well-known Southern California ranchers. THE Palanquin (pal-an-keen') was the last word in a luxurious closed equipage used by Oriental nobility before motor cars came into general use.

We have adapted the comfort and luxury of the Palanquin to motor car service.

A Perfect Closed Car

This closed car equipment is so perfect, so much finer than anything else of its kind, that we have given it a new and distinctive name. It is not to be confused with the makeshifts you may have previously seen.

The Palanquin equipment is built with the Siz-40 seven-passenger touring body and blends into it perfectly. It fits it exactly. Each touring body is specially arranged to take the Palanquin and when installed it is built right into the touring car.

Twin Bodies Designed Together

The Chalmers Six-40 seven-passenger touring body and the Palanquin were designed together to give maximum comfort to seven people in an open or closed car—at practically the price of one.

Chalmers designers have made it possible for every owner to enjoy closed car comfort, and have forever done away with the expense of purchasing and maintaining both a touring car and limousine.

The Palanquin can be quickly put on or taken off in your own garage without the expense of a shop expert. The change is simple and easy, as both bodies are properly ironed so that anything but an exact fit is impossible.

The bears invited her to live with them, and when the children walked into the room Goldy Locks was holding the little bear on her lap. MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

SHOULD like to say a word to Mra
F. W., the woman who is growing deaf, and wishes, at eyer 56, to earn her own living. First I wish to applied her determination to support herself and thus keep mind and body from rusting out, as they are so likely to do at her age. Further, I would any to her that her first step should be to learn to read the lips. I know of one deaf woman who earns her living teaching lip reading, and another who, through her knowledge of it, has an excellent position.
The number of positions open to a deaf woman who can read the lips will be greater than to one who cannot. M."
This suggestion that the deaf should acquire the art of lip reading has been made before frequently in the Corner, but it cannot be repeated too often. The trials of the deaf are marvelously mitigated by skill in reading the lips and I only wonder that those who have lost their hearing and isment their consequent isolation do not give more attention to this method of relief.

I am sure there will be prompt answers to this appeal. The loneliness of a girl of 25 afficted with spinal curvature is peculiarly touching to me, and I do not doubt to others also, and I hope the child may have the cheering letters and reading matters she craves. Her address will be given promptly to applicable.

Helped Her Gel Well.

"I will be giad to send some interesting magnetines to F. M. I have been in Sunshine work for fifteen years, and during a long filness specified much cheer and courses from your friends; in fact, my physician said they alsed my recovery.

Another one of the many tributes accorded the Cornerites for their kindly offices. The address of F. M. was sent at once, and there is no question that the interesting magnatines will be gratefully received.

Unable to Walk.

"I have been an invalid for fifteen years and am unable to walk. If some one of the kind readers of the Helping Bland has a wheel chair I would be giad to get it I am financially unable to buy one for my-acif.

One of the frequent appeals we have for a heel chairs and which are usually answered satisfactorily. Any one who has been an inveiled for fifteen years should surely win the compassion and assistance of those more fortunate in health than herself.

Letter for Mrs. H. G. O. "I have mislaid the street address and number of Mrs. H. G. O. Will you kindly put it on the letter I inclose and post it for me? Mrs. C. W. Y." or me? Mrs. C. W. Y."
With this note came a sealed letter addressed to Mrs. H. G. O., but unfortunately we have not her address. Should also see this and write to me, telling me how to direct this letter, it will be forwarded to her at once. Meanwhile we shall hold it unless Mrs. C. W. V. writes asking for its return.

Blacking for Sloves.

"In response to the request of Mrs. R. L. S. I send the following: A blacking for stoves which we have used for years and found invaluable is made by mixing equal parts of kappens oil and turpenture with a good stove polish. Make a paste the espaisatency of theig cream and apply to the stove when it is slightly marm. Polish with annel cloth and you will have a bright and shining stove for months. Even on sirtight heaters which offen become reduct this polish will not burn off. An application of this polish before putting stoves away for the summer will prevent rusting.

"Mrs. R. L. S. will undeubtedly be slad to get this recipe and it will probably be welcome to others besides.

Need Clother for School.

"Three of my boys need to be in school badly, but we are not able to clothe them properly and meet the payments on the farm at the same time. We would be segind to get clothing for our boys. Thry are from 10 to if years of ass. I will gladly make what return I can for such garments by knitting or erechet work, as I can do almost any kind, or I will exchange nice large satin and allk pieces in pound bundles for clothing. One pound of the pieces will make a quilt. I would also like to get infants' long or short clothes.

and if any of the Cernerities cars to send them to me I will send new transfer embroiders paper patterns. I do hepe there will be some one who will cars to help us out for we need the things very much.

As I have said before, it is against my practice to said for clothing through the lielping Hand except in rare instances. But when buys need schooling and the parents are esser for them to take it and are unable to provide the children with proper clithing it strikes me as being a case where an exception should be made. At this time of year, when the last year's garments are looked over, there are almost always certain articles which are nutureway certain articles which are nutureway and these could perhap be utilized by the mother of three boys whose ages range from 10 to 18. It is easy to see that anything which could be used would be welcome, either as a free gift or in exchange for the work or the pleece or the patterns offered by the mother. I shall hope to have a prompt and generous response to this appeal.

Silver Dellar of 1799.

The answer to N. A. S., who asks the value of a 1700 silver dollar, I will give the following information: Silver dollars for 1700 with the fillet head, having five stars to right of bust are valued at from $1.75 to $2.50 apiece. Hiet head with aix stars to right of bust are valued at from $1.75 to $2.50 apiece. Hiet head if the silve of this sort. Mint marks play an important part with the most valuable coine and highly valued coine are rare.

Filicat head 'means the head of Liberty when tied with a band.

"Mns. E. H. M."

I have put the address of Mrs. E. H. M. on file for the benefit of those who may wish it in order to secure information relative to coins they possess. The ame snewer as to the value of the sliver dollars has come to me from several other quarters, and I thank the senders. One of them writes that she's a sir' of it who wishes to be of service in the Corner and she offers the name of certain deslers with whom those desiring to dispess at their coins may communicat. Cannot give these addresses on this nage, but the kindness of the writer is none the less appreciated.

A Tag Book

A 1 ag Dook

A practical newcomer to the list of art linen novelties is a tag book for the systematic housewife. It looks much like a magazine cover of the art linen in bold floral and parrot designs. Inside, however, are stitched to a firm foundation binding rows and rows of various sized tags and pages of gummed labels. This makes a very preity gift or prize and will be welcomed by any woman around traveling or housecleaning time, when clothes must be stored and marked for future identification.

That crocheted filet lace and new huck towelling should be shrunk separately before the lace is placed in the towel.

That dainty scarls for dressing table and bureau can be made from strips of narrowly hemmed linen, with a crechet edge of colored mercerized cotton over the narrow hems.

That a safety pin run through the last crochet stitch when the work is to be laid away will keep it from raveling.

That embroidery hoops are indispensable for the work beg, for darning patching and any sort of mending.

A Ruche of Bought Ruffling NECKWEAR. If you know your friends preference and, incidentally, the size of her neck, makes a really delightful and practical gift fr almost any girl. No girl can have too many pretty high collars or ruffs, but ready-made neckwear is a luxury that cannot be indulged in too often. Neither does the average girl have time to make every new fancy bit of neckwear she sees in the shops. With good models before one, the feat of making the new neckwear is an easy one of accomplishment.

Picoted net ruffling may be bought by the yard and makes the fashioning of the "capecollar" easier yet. Rip the ruffling from the narrow net hand which confines it. This is simple if yeu get the right thread of the machine stitching. Use the full six inches of wide ruffling for the cape part. A half yard of six-inch ruffling will suffice, as nine of six-inch ruffling will suffice, as nine inches of the six-inch width will make the cape part, and the other nine inches can be split in half and used for a double width of three-inch net for the collar proper and for a three-inch frill at the top. Baste the straight collar together and the cape and frill at bottom and top, respectively. Take the basted collar to a shop where hemstitching is done and have the whole thing hemstitched and the raw frill edges in the front picoted. It will only cost a few cents. A yard and three-quarters of black moire ribbon a trifle over an inch wide is sufficient to go around the bottom and top of the collar and lap in long ends in front. The ribbon is folded over slightly to give it more body. Snap fasteners hold it in place on the collar.

A double thickness each of black and white maline makes the frill which tops a band of wide velyet ribbon. This collar, like the first one described, leaves the throat bare and makes for more comfort than the collars that are high in the front. Loops of the velvet ribbon are made at each side of the front, where the maline begins. The collar fastens with enaps under one of these loops. Well-fitting and extremely stylish is the long-cared collar of organdle. But one thickness of material is used here, making the cutting of the collar a very easy matter. This collar is well fortified with the finest of wire. The entire edge is stiffened with the wire, which is sewed to the goods with an over-and-over stitch, the superfluous material be-ing then cut away. Wire is applied in the same way to the middle of the col-lar, giving it extra strength in a really ornamental way. Black embroidered dots give a finishing touch. A wide band of black grosgrain ribbon gives the collar a stock effect. Pleating again cap be used for the last Pleating again can be used for the last model with the high upstanding ruff. A wide two-toned pleating of organdle has been selected here with a hem of light blue. Any color, according to the color preference of the selected friend, could be substituted. The frill is attached to the top of a crushed band of wide black satin ribbon, which ties in a bow at the back. Some more durable foundation of muslin should line the rib-bon stock to give it more firmness. The bow should be made separately and sewed to the ribbon, letting the collar

A Bedtime Dollie

T'S the most practical sort of a big cuddly doll for the very little tot who wants her favorite child in bed with her at night. In fact, the bedtime doll is very shapeless; it has no arms or legs and merely the suggestion of a head. It is made from two shaped pieces of white muslin with the face printed or painted upon one piece and hair on the other. A few outline stitches might make the hair and features more permanent. The muslin is sewed together and stuffed tightly with cotton. A round shirred mebcap can be sewed or tied over the doll's head and a petiticat or skirt tied about her middle—not her waist. This same idea for the bedtime dollie can be imitated in various arimale such as cats, dogs, bunnles, etc. The child loves a huggable toy without sharp angles. no arms or legs and merely the sug-

A collar bag is something which every man is sure to appreciate. Always make an effort to present a gift which can be used; this frature makes a gift doubly dear to a man. A very useful bag can be made of linen or suede cloth. For the foundation you can employ six-inch circles of cardboard, or, better still, use the bottom of a circular or square candy or fruit box. This, too, will have to be carefully covered with the material of the bag before it is inserted in the bottom. A touch of hand embroidery or hand painting will add to the appearance of the bag. Finish the top of the bag with a hem and attach ivory rings so that a cord can be run through.

Household Linens

Household Linens

No Housekeeper can ever have enough attractive linen for her table and her bedrooms. She may have enough for actual service, but it is wise to keep just a little ahead of the actual need in extra towels for guestroom and hathroom it is also advisable to keep just a little ahead in the supply of linen for the table.

Every set of napkins and each tablecloth should have the housewife a surname initial or her monogram is embreidered upon it. There is a question as to the proper place to put the initial or monogram, but the majority prefer the letter on table cloths to be in the corner, where they will come just off the rounded edge of the table.

Napkins should have the initials in the copner or in the middle on one side, where they will be on top when the napkins are folded. The anapkins are the only ones on which a wreath can appropriately be placed. It is quite permissible to place an initial within the wreath or other decorative motif. Tea napkins can also be finished with hemstitched or scalloped edges.

Some women may argue that they haven't time to put fancy work on household linen. This is a poon argument. For almost every work on household linen. This is a poon argument of a suring the day when she sits down to chair a preat deal can be accomplished, especially in the way of fancy work. Pick-up work is good for the nerves.

The corners of the skirt droop into same category, so suggestive of daintiness and simplicity are they all.

There does seem to be, comparatively, the utmost leeway in evening frocks. Madame must be circumspectly garbed for morning and afternoon, but for evening she may follow her own sweet will, be it ever so bizarre, romantic or daring. Just now frocks are showing the influence of the romantic, and some charming sentimentalist has created the "flower-girl frock." In line the new frock is emphatically just the kind that the costumer would select for the little flower-selling maiden of a musical comedy. Particularly is this true of the silk frock covered with flaunting American beauties. It is panniered and puffed to perfection, and all madame needs, to turn this really conventional dance frock into pretty masquerade garb, is a
